

Fort Worth, TX

Nov 3, 2016 • 1,066 notes

Howdy, y'all! It's time for this week's Certified Dank™ McMansion! Whichever one of my Patreon donors who suggested Fort Worth, TX gets a super pat on the back because that place is full of some serious fug.

Before I begin this post, I would like to make a note in regards to some recent emails that go something like "BUT WHY DO YOU MAKE FUN OF INTERIORS? WHAT WOULD YOU PUT IN A HOUSE????!!!!1" The point of these weekly house post is to make fun of really tacky houses and really tacky staging by real estate agents. If you haven't noticed, none of the houses I've posted look like they've ever been lived in by actual people. Actual people have real tastes and it's (mostly) not fair to make fun of them. But tacky house staging by realtors? Totally up for grabs.

Anyway, back to our scheduled content.

This week's house, a Mansard built in 1993 (but is totes 1987) is pushing 5,000 square feet, and is currently on the market for

McMansion Hell

Now, Mansard houses are weird. The style only lasted around 20 years, and is pretty much quintessential 70s weird. Named after the mansard roof, which was popular in a French-influenced Victorian style known as the Second Empire, the Mansard style was popular from around 1965 to 1985. If you're interested in these strange beasts, be sure to check this link from Washington State University.

However, our house was built in 1993 meaning it's almost 10 years behind.

Whoops.

The Entryway Thing

McMansion Hell

While there is a brass n glass chandelier in this home, I couldn't seem to find any views of it, mostly because this REALLY weird staircase/catwalk kinda gets in the way of everything, even itself. The columns really obstruct the path from the front door to anything remotely near the stairs. Whoops.

The Living Room

McMansion Hell

As you can see in this picture, the staircase/catwalk thing is really weird. Not only is it low to the ground, but it basically shuts the rest of the house out from any sort of light coming from those 2-story fanlight windows. The placing and spacing of the columns would make Borromini cry.

Dining Room 1 of 3

Notes: I feel like there are way too many chairs for this one table and also can anyone else hear the SCREEEEEEEECH sound of wood on tile in their heads?

Powder Room

Ok, but how cool would it be to poop in dank 80s luxury????

Putting a cherub in a bathroom is unsettling to me for some reason. Also special lol @ that spray-painted side table.

Dining Room 2 of 3

I am seriously amazed by this wallpaper. It takes serious balls to put metallic flower-motif wallpaper on your ceiling. I could have done without the leopard print chairs, but to each their own.

Dining Room 3 of 3

I'm starting to think that there are so many dining rooms in these houses because these open, empty spaces aren't conducive to much else. There's no privacy and/or way to prevent noise from activities like watching TV from getting into adjacent rooms. This is the key fallacy of the open floor plan.

THIS AMAZING KITCHEN

Ok, if you want to put botanical stickers on your shabby chic cabinets, more power to you. I am really impressed by the two refrigerators. If I had two refrigerators one would be exclusively for booze.

The Dark & Dreary Office/Study

HOPEFULLY this carpet is not coming back in style any time soon..

And the award for poorest quality cabinetry goes to....

Master Bedroom

McMansion Hell

One of my Twitter followers informed me recently that many people who do home staging for a living do in fact buy a lot of their furniture from hotel liquidation sales. This explains a great deal about this bedroom.

The Master Bath

I'm incredibly sad that this was the only view of the master bath, which is honestly incredible.

Bedroom No. 2

McMansion Hell

Ok don't get too excited - I've only seen like 2 episodes of Doctor Who. This bedroom is almost scarier than that one episode with the weird Medusa angel statues.

And Finally (there was no backyard shots, sadly)

Bathroom No. 2

McMansion Hell

There are too many metaphors for death in this bathroom.

Well, that wraps it up for this week's Certified Dank McMansion! Stay tuned for Sunday's What the Hell Is... post!

Like this post? Want to see more like it, and get exclusive content to all things McMansionHell? Consider supporting me on Patreon!

Copyright Disclaimer: All photographs in this post are from real estate aggregate Zillow.com and are used in this post for the purposes of education, satire, and parody, consistent with 17 USC §107.

McMansion Hell

dank #mmotw

... ⌂ ❤

1,066 notes

miczarieltn liked this

robin-the-robo liked this sadclowngorl liked this loveless2010a liked this lunarsunrise42 liked this

the-biggest-mt liked this greengobsmacked liked this kiitakyushu liked this knocking-on-peoples-non-doors liked this knocking-on-peoples-non-doors reblogged this from mcmansionhell

latitude-sims liked this nightelftrash liked this avi200-blog1 liked this devourer-ita liked this graeterslover-blog liked this stephenballantyne50 liked this gaeilge-goth liked this satans-firstborn liked this thorneinursside-archive liked this howieduet liked this

McMansion Hell

 the-baby-seal liked this allofthepasta liked this modrngirl liked this chaoticairportdude liked this elliegoose liked this die-erzherzogin liked this fairytalewithastinginthetail liked this gerardohd-1 liked this corvida-rising liked this vulcancandlewax liked this stars--in--your--heart said: I know this house and my contempt for its design is now justified elviscooper said: This was hilarious and as someone who lives in Fort Worth I know there are a bunch of ugly developments with crap houses like this, mostly on the outskirts of the city, but to be fair, there's also a ton of beautiful architecture from the 1900s-1920s throughout the city, so I'm a tiny bit upset by the insinuation that we have mostly tacky mcmansions. Like yes this is abhorrent, but neighborhoods like fairmount and Ryan place are full of beautifully preserved homes from the turn of the century elviscooper liked this stemaha-blog liked this

 bradypaul liked this

 violetren liked this

 mossman-with-a-mossplan reblogged this from lifeaccordingtodrew

 stars--in--your--heart reblogged this from mcmansionhell stars--in--your--heart liked this lifeaccordingtodrew reblogged this from mcmansionhell

 quaf-delicates liked this danettesim liked this daniellaj65 liked this kathrynrexx liked this

 mcmansionhell posted this

Show more notes

ABOUT

If you love to hate the ugly houses that became ubiquitous before (and after) the bubble burst you've come to the right place. Be sure to check out McMansions 101! All photos © McMansionHell.com unless otherwise noted.

© McMansion Hell 2016–2021. Powered by Tumblr. Theme by Artcore